

José González Freyre, President of Pan American Grain, was born in Puerto Rico. He began his business in 1977. From thereon, he has built four mills in Puerto Rico, including the largest rice processing plant in the western hemisphere.

In 2006, he launches the successful alcoholic beverages known as “Gasolina”. In 2007, Mr. González opened a coffee roaster business and acquires Ochoa Fertilizer. He has been a manufacturer for Coca Cola and Welch’s and has become the only Puerto Rican to own a US Flag Bulk Cargo Vessel.

After Haiti’s earthquake, he was fully involved in logistic and delivery of “The Barge of Hope” full with food that he and Puerto Rican community donated.